Professor Chan is a world leader in health and social work. She is editor and author of over 20 books, author of over 300 articles and book chapters in health and mental health in social work, eastern integrative empowerment intervention and outcome research, psychosocial oncology, death and bereavement care. She advocated for a strength-oriented empowerment approach in her work with traumatized individuals such as cancer patients, women of divorce, bereaved persons, couples with fertility issues, suicide survivors and victims of disaster. Her focus is on transformation through pain and suffering. She adopted vigorous bio-psycho-social outcome indicators in her randomized trials on measuring impact of her innovative Integrative Body-Mind-Spirit (IBMS) interventions on different population groups. She leads the first multi-disciplinary team using salivary cortisol (stress) and telomerase (anti-aging) as physiological impact on psychosocial and qigong exercises training by social workers. Her creative synergy of Chinese philosophies and Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM) practices into holistic behavioral health intervention is ground breaking. Her integrative meaning-making empowerment strategies effectively nurture spirituality of forgiveness, appreciation, gratitude, peace, hope, resilience and optimism, which are fundamental to building a harmonious society. Her leadership in the study of hospice, palliative, trauma, disaster and bereavement care is also recognized by her many international awards and local recognitions. She has graduated over 50 research postgraduate students, many of them has taken up leadership positions in prestigious universities. She has established new service delivery systems like Hospital Patients' Resource Centers and Community Rehabilitation Network in Hong Kong, as well as establish new services for orphans, chronic patients and victims of disaster in China and Asia. She is an excellent social work academic and practitioner, a social entrepreneur and a Change Maker in society. She served as Founding Director to the Centre on Behavioral Health, Master of Social Science (Behavioral Health) Program, HKU-HKJC ExCEL3 Project (Excellence in Capacity-building on Entrepreneurship and Leadership for the Third Sector), JCECC (Jockey Club End-of-life Community Care) Project, Master of Social Science (Nonprofit Management) in The University of Hong Kong. She was also instrumental in the establishment of the Sau Po Centre on Aging, Centre of Buddhist Studies, HKJC Centre on Suicide Research and Prevention, and many other taught post-graduate programs such as Master of Social Sciences (Behavioral Health), Master of Expressive Art Therapies, Master of Social Sciences (Counseling), Master of Social Sciences (Gerontology), Master of Nonprofit Management etc. Member of international networks such as IWG, IPOS, AOSW, and Social Value International.
